11 UNITED STATES OF 12 AMERICA,

13 Plaintiff,

14 v.

15 ROBERT COTA, JR.,

16 Defendant.

CRIM CASE NO. 11-cr-4153-WQH
CIVIL CASE NO. 18-cv-2787-WQH

ORDER

17 HAYES, Judge:

18 The matter before the Court is the motion to vacate, correct or set aside sentence by 19 a person in federal custody pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255 filed by Petitioner Robert Cota 20 Jr. (ECF No. 1180).

21 BACKGROUND FACTS

22 On September 15, 2011, a grand jury returned an indictment charging Petitioner with 23 conspiracy to distribute methamphetamine in violation of 21 U.S.C. §§ 841 and 846. (ECF 24 No. 1). Petitioner was arrested on September 22, 2011 and the Government's motion to 25 detain was granted. (ECF No. 100).

26 On December 11, 2012, the Court granted Petitioner's request to represent himself.
27 (ECF No. 608).
28

1 On March 3, 2014, the Court held a competency hearing. Petitioner was determined 2 to be competent to continue representing himself. (ECF No. 884). Petitioner was assisted 3 at all times by advisory counsel John Kirby. The Court granted a total of eight trial 4 continuances and held multiple discovery hearings to address Petitioner to prepare for trial.

5 On December 2, 2014, the Court began the jury trial. (ECF No. 1022).

6 On December 5, 2014, the jury returned a verdict of guilty on the charge of 7 conspiracy to distribute methamphetamine and determined that the actual amount of 8 methamphetamine was 50 grams or more. (ECF No. 1025).

9 On May 20, 2015, the Court held a sentencing hearing. The Court found that the 10 sentencing guideline range to be 360 months to life. After considering all factors under 18 11 U.S.C. § 3553 (a), the Court sentenced Petitioner to the applicable mandatory minimum 12 sentence of 240 months in custody followed by 10 years of supervised release. (ECF No.
13 1107).

14 On May 28, 2015, Petitioner filed a timely notice of appeal to the Ninth Circuit.
15 (ECF No. 1090). On September 22, 2015, Petitioner was appointed appellate counsel.
16 (ECF No. 1128). On appeal, Petitioner challenged the district court's denial of Petitioner's 17 pre-trial motion to suppress wiretap evidence along with the use of Petitioner's prior felony 18 conviction to enhance his sentence. (ECF No. 1174).

19 On May 31, 2017, the Ninth Circuit affirmed both the conviction and sentence. (ECF 20 No. 1174). On October 2, 2017, appellate counsel filed a petition for a writ of certiorari 21 with the Supreme Court of the United States. The Supreme Court denied certiorari on 22 December 11, 2017.

23 On December 10, 2018, Petitioner filed a motion to vacate, set aside or correct 24 pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255 on the grounds that constitutional violations which occurred 25 prior to and during trial entitle him to relief; that appellate counsel's conduct constituted 26 ineffective assistance of counsel; and that the Court lacks jurisdiction which entitles him 27 to a dismissal of charges with prejudice, a new trial, or an evidentiary hearing. (ECF No.
28 1180).

1 On January 25, 2019, the Government filed a response opposing the three grounds 2 for relief. (ECF No. 1182).

3 On April 8, 2019, Petitioner filed a reply to the Government's response. (ECF No.
4 1191).

5 CONTENTIONS OF PARTIES

6 Petitioner moves the Court to vacate, set aside, or correct his sentence on the grounds 7 that he was prejudiced by constitutional violations during pre-trial proceedings and trial, 8 that he was denied effective assistance of appellate counsel, and that the Court does not 9 have jurisdiction over his case. Petitioner contends that he would have prevailed on appeal 10 had appellate counsel raised the following issues: 1) a denial of a trial continuance 11 preventing him from meaningful access to his discovery to prepare his defense, 2) 12 shackling at trial in view of the jury, and 3) cumulative error. Petitioner contends that 13 appellate counsel's failure to raise these claims constituted deficient performance under an 14 objective standard of reasonableness. Petitioner contends that he was prejudiced by 15 appellate counsel's conduct. Petitioner further contends that the Court is not the proper 16 venue to adjudicate his case.

17 Plaintiff United States contends that Petitioner procedurally defaulted on the 18 constitutional violation claims by failing to raise them on direct appeal. Plaintiff United 19 States contends that Petitioner has not established actual and substantial prejudice 20 sufficient to excuse the procedural default of the claims. Plaintiff United States contends 21 appellate counsel acted within the reasonable professional standards mandated by the Sixth 22 Amendment. Plaintiff contends that the Court has jurisdiction over Petitioner's case.

23 APPLICABLE LAW

24 28 U.S.C. § 2255 provides:

25 A prisoner under sentence of a court established by Act of Congress 26 claiming the right to be released upon ground that the sentence was imposed 27 in violation of the Constitution or laws of the United States, or that the court 28 was without jurisdiction to impose such sentence, or that the sentence was in excess of the maximum authorized by law, or is otherwise subject to collateral

1 attack, may move the court which imposed the sentence to vacate, set aside or 2 correct the sentence.

3 Unless the motion and the files and records of the case conclusively 4 show that the prisoner is entitled to no relief, the court shall cause notice 5 thereof to be served upon the United States attorney, grant a prompt hearing 6 thereon, determine the issues and make findings of facts and conclusions of 7 law with respect thereto. If the court finds that the judgment was rendered 8 without jurisdiction, or that the sentence imposed was not authorized by law 9 or otherwise open to collateral attack, or that there has been a denial or 10 infringement of the constitutional rights of the prisoner as to render the 11 judgment vulnerable to collateral attack, the court shall vacate and set aside 12 the judgment and shall discharge the prisoner or resentence him or grant a new 13 trial or correct the sentence as may appear appropriate.

14 28 U.S.C. § 2255(a) and (b).

15 RULING OF THE COURT

16 1. Constitutional Violations

17 A petitioner who challenges his sentence under § 2255 without first raising his claim 18 on direct appeal procedurally defaults the claim. United States v. Ratigan, 351 F.3d 957, 19 962 (9th Cir. 2003). Where a petitioner has procedurally defaulted a claim by failing to 20 raise it on direct review, the claim may be raised in habeas only if the petitioner can first 21 demonstrate either "cause" and actual "prejudice," or that he is actually innocent. Bousley 22 v. United States, 523 U.S. 614, 622 (1998) (internal citations omitted); see also United 23 States v. Johnson, 988 F.2d 941, 945 (9th Cir. 1993) (holding that defendant procedurally 24 defaulted sufficiency of evidence claim by failing to raise it on direct appeal). Cause is a 25 legitimate excuse for the default; prejudice is actual harm resulting from the alleged 26 constitutional violation. Magby v. Wawrzaszek, 741 F.2d 240, 244 (9th Cir. 1984).

27 a. Pre-Trial (Discovery and Continuance)

28 In this case, Petitioner contends the Court abused its discretion in denying a trial continuance to allow Petitioner meaningful access to his discovery to prepare his defense.
Plaintiff United States contends that Petitioner had meaningful access to discovery and the Court did not abuse its discretion in denying a ninth trial continuance.

1 An order denying a continuance will not be reversed without a clear abuse of 2 discretion. The determination whether a denial of a continuance constitutes an abuse of 3 discretion depends on a consideration of the facts of each case. United States v. Flynt, 756 4 F.2d 1352, 1359 (9th Cir.), amended, 764 F.2d 675 (9th Cir.1985). To demonstrate 5 reversible error, the defendant must show that the denial resulted in actual prejudice to his 6 defense. United States v. Lane, 765 F.2d 1376, 1379 (9th Cir. 1985).

7 Petitioner's trial was originally set for October 30, 2012. Petitioner's counsel 8 requested a continuance of the trial on October 19, 2012 and the trial was reset to January 9 15, 2013. (ECF No. 536). On December 11, 2012, the Court granted Petitioner's request 10 to represent himself and reset the trial to April 16, 2013 to allow Petitioner to prepare his 11 case. (ECF No. 608).

12 On March 22, 2013, the trial was reset to August 20, 2013 to allow the Petitioner 13 more time to prepare his case. (ECF No. 679). On August 5, 2013, the trial date was 14 vacated. (ECF No. 736). On August 22, 2013, the trial was reset to January 14, 2014 to 15 allow the Petitioner additional time to prepare. (ECF No. 744). The Court addressed all 16 matters necessary for trial preparation, including any discovery issues, in each hearing.

17 On January 7, 2014, the Court vacated the trial date and ordered a competency 18 evaluation of Petitioner following a series of motions Petitioner filed challenging the 19 jurisdiction of the court. (ECF No. 866 at 3).

20 On March 3, 2014, Petitioner was found to be competent to continue representing 21 himself and the Court set a trial date for August 19, 2014, accommodating Petitioner's 22 request for 90 days to finish preparing for his trial. (ECF No. 884 at 12).

23 On July 3, 2014, the trial date was vacated and reset for August 26, 2014. (ECF No.
24 920). At a status hearing on August 22, 2014, Petitioner stated his expert witness had not 25 yet completed his investigation (ECF No. 959 at 4). Petitioner stated he previously had 26 difficulty accessing the electronic version of his discovery files due to his incarceration.
27 (ECF No. 959 at 7). Petitioner stated he no longer had issues accessing his discovery and 28 would review the phone calls the Government intended to use at trial (ECF No. 959 at 11).

1 The Court vacated the trial date and reset again for November 12, 2014. (ECF No. 959 at 2 20).

3 On August 29, 2014, the Court held a discovery hearing to ensure Petitioner had 4 access to both paper and electronic discovery. (ECF No. 960). Petitioner refused to address 5 the Court on whether Petitioner had adequate access to his electronic discovery. (ECF No.
6 960 at 4).

7 On October 17, 2014, the Court held a status hearing regarding Petitioner's access 8 to discovery. (ECF No. 968). Petitioner stated he had access to both his paper discovery 9 and his electronic discovery on a daily basis. (ECF No. 968 at 4). The Government stated 10 the facility where Petitioner was housed had record of the multiple days Petitioner refused 11 to view his electronic discovery. (ECF No. 968 at 6-7).

12 Petitioner requested a hearing, and on October 30, 2014, he expressed concerns he 13 had not prepared sufficiently for trial. (ECF No. 969 at 5). Petitioner asserted he had only 14 reviewed four of the ten boxes of discovery provided by the Government and that he had 15 not accessed his electronic discovery every day. (ECF No. 969 at 6). In part, Petitioner 16 blamed his advisory counsel for Petitioner's lack of preparation. (ECF No. 969 at 11). The 17 Court told Petitioner to continue to prepare for trial. (ECF No. 969 at 18).

18 At a hearing on November 10, 2014, the Court reset trial for December 2, 2014 due 19 to the Court's scheduling conflict. (ECF No. 1020).

20 At a motion in limine hearing on December 1, 2014, Petitioner requested another 21 trial continuance on the basis that he was not properly prepared. (ECF No. 1021 at 21-23).
22 The Court denied a ninth trial continuance and the trial commenced on December 2, 2014.
23 (ECF No. 1021 at 23).

24 In this case, Petitioner was denied the final trial continuance following two years of 25 pre-trial preparation during which Petitioner had ample opportunity to review discovery to 26 prepare for his case. Petitioner asserted that his difficulty accessing electronic discovery 27 limited his ability to review the phone calls the Government would introduce at trial at a 28 hearing on August 22, 2014. (ECF No. 1021 at 21). Petitioner has not shown any grounds

1 to support his contention that the Court abused its discretion in denying Petitioner's request
2 for a continuance for the December 2, 2014 trial date. Petitioner had a two-year pretrial
3 period to review his discovery during which his trial was continued eight times. (ECF 986 4 at 3–4). The Court held multiple hearings to ensure that Petitioner had opportunity to 5 access to his discovery and allowed Petitioner's input to set the trial dates. (ECF Nos. 884 6 at 11; 959 at 19). The Court confirmed with prison officials the Petitioner's ability to 7 access discovery while detained. (ECF Nos. 959 at 12-15; 969 at 15). Petitioner 8 acknowledged that he had daily access to all his discovery and that he had been preparing 9 to go to trial. (ECF No. 968 at 4; ECF No. 969 at 20).

10 Defendant has not show that the denial of a trial continuance resulted in any 11 prejudice to his defense. See Lane, 765 F.2d at 1379 (holding defendant failed to show 12 actual prejudice when he did not specify which witnesses he would have interviewed, 13 which documents he wanted to examine or which defenses he would have explored had he 14 been granted a longer continuance). The denial of continuance did not result in actual 15 prejudice to Petitioner and does not excuse his procedural default.

16 b. Trial (Shackling)

17 Petitioner contends that his alleged shackling during his jury trial violated his 18 constitutional rights. Plaintiff United States contends there was no constitutional violation 19 and asserts the record conclusively shows that Petitioner was not shackled during the jury 20 trial.

21 The Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments prohibit the use of physical restraints on a 22 Petitioner visible to a jury without first determining a government interest specific to the 23 trial. Deck v. Missouri, 544 U.S. 622, 629 (2007). "A defendant has the right to be free of 24 shackles and handcuff in the presence of the jury, unless shackling is justified by an 25 essential state interest." Ghent v. Woodford, 279 1121, 1132 (9th Cir.2002).

26 In this case, Petitioner makes two references to the record as evidence explicitly 27 indicating he was restrained, December 9, 2013 and July 30, 2014, both of which occurred 28

1 during pre-trial proceedings. (ECF Nos. 865 at 3; 1143 at 5). On December 9, 2013, the 2 record indicates the Petitioner was in full restraints during a motion hearing.

3 DEFENDANT: Can I have the marshals undue my handcuffs so I can 4 pull some papers out and to write?

5 THE COURT: I do notice that he is in full restraints. Since he is 6 representing himself, he can free up his right hand.

7 (ECF No. 865 at 3).

8 On May 12, 2014, the record indicates Petitioner failed to comply with the marshals' 9 instructions and resisted leaving the courtroom at the end of his motion hearing. (ECF No.
10 933 at 6). On July 30, 2014, the record shows that Petitioner was not shackled at the hands 11 during the proceeding.

12 THE COURT: . . .you are not shackled at the hands, and I am sure that 13 you would prefer not to be shackled at the hands, and I would prefer 14 you not to be shackled at the hands, so if you comply with the request 15 of the marshals, you won't have to be shackled at the hands.

16 (ECF No. 1143 at 3). The record reflects Petitioner's purported objection to be a request 17 he be released from pre-trial custody in general. (ECF No. 1143 at 5).

18 On December 1, 2014, during a motion in limine hearing, the Court discussed with 19 Petitioner whether he intended to offer evidence that he had been in custody pending trial.

20 THE COURT: Often defendants don't want the jury to know that they 21 are in custody, because sometimes, you know, they may draw an 22 adverse inference, so generally we work very hard for the jurors to not 23 know that anyone is in custody. We think there should be no distinction 24 between somebody who is on bail and not on bail.

25 (ECF No. 1021 at 20). The Court further ensured that Petitioner had court-appropriate 26 attire to not represent himself wearing a detainee jumpsuit. The Court explained the trial 27 procedures to the Petitioner and ordered both Government counsel and Petitioner to address 28 the jury while seated at their respective tables. The transcript does not reflect any reference to shackling during trial. On the contrary, the transcript reflects the Court's effort during

1 trial to prevent the jury from considering the possibility of the Petitioner's pre-trial 2 detention.

3 On December 4, 2014, (Day 3 of Jury Trial), a witness disclosed during the cross-4 examination by Government counsel that Petitioner had been incarcerated for three years 5 prior to the trial. (ECF No. 1024 at 411). The Court addressed the statement with Petitioner 6 and Government counsel while jury was absent. (ECF No. 1024 at 439-41). Prior to 7 closing arguments, the Court instructed the jury to disregard the witness's statement 8 regarding Petitioner's pre-trial detention. (ECF No. 1024 at 449-50).

9 Petitioner submits an affidavit from his brother Roland Cota asserting to having been 10 "at the trial for the whole trial" except during the voir dire process. (ECF No. 1191 at 39).
11 Petitioner's brother Roland Cota was a witness during the trial and had been excluded from 12 the courtroom prior to his testimony. (ECF No. 1024 at 407). Petitioner submits two 13 affidavits purportedly signed by his standby counsel John Kirby. The affidavit dated 14 December 18, 2017, asserts Mr. Kirby told Petitioner "it was [his] understanding that 15 nothing could be done about [Petitioner] being forced to wear shackles/restraints during 16 his trial in the presence of the jury." (ECF No. 1191 at 31).

17 In this case, the record establishes conclusively not only that Petitioner was not 18 shackled in front of the jury, but that the Court made substantial efforts to prevent the jury 19 from inferring that Petitioner was detained pre-trial. The record does not reflect any 20 instance of shackling during trial and the Court finds that Defendant was not shackled at 21 any time in the presence of the jury. Petitioner's affidavits supporting his claim that he 22 was shackled during trial are not credible and contradicted by the record. The Court finds 23 Petitioner failed to establish he was, in fact, shackled in front of the jury and fails to 24 establish prejudice to excuse his procedural default.

25 c. Cumulative Error

26 Petitioner contends the combined effect of his constitutional violation claims amount 27 to a cumulative error egregious enough to constitute a constitutional violation itself.
28

1 Plaintiff United States contends that since none of the constitutional violation claims have 2 merit, no cumulative error exists.

3 The record does not support Petitioner's claims that the Court abused its discretion 4 in not granting him a continuance which prevented Petitioner from meaningful access to 5 his discovery, and that the Court ordered Petitioner shackled during his trial. Petitioner has 6 failed to demonstrate the existence of any constitutional errors.

7 As the Third Circuit has aptly stated, "[t]he cumulative effect of each non-error does 8 not rise to constitutional error; as the saying goes, zero plus zero equals zero." United 9 States v. Powell, 444 F. App'x 517, 522 (3d Cir. 2011). Even if Petitioner had established 10 the existence of individual errors, when considered alongside the evidence offered against 11 him at trial, such errors are harmless because it is more probable than not that, taken 12 together, such errors did not materially affect the verdict. See United States v. Fernandez, 13 388 F.3d 1199, 1256-57 (9th Cir. 2004), modified, 425 F.3d 1248 (9th Cir. 2005) ("To the 14 extent that we have found that any claimed error . . . was harmless, . . . we conclude that 15 the cumulative effect of such claimed errors is also harmless because it is more probable 16 than not that, taken together, they did not materially affect the verdict."). Because there 17 were no constitutional errors to raise, Petitioner has no grounds for cumulative error.

18 2. Ineffective assistance of appellate counsel

19 Petitioner contends that he was prejudiced by his appellate counsel's failure to argue 20 the previously-mentioned constitutional violations on direct appeal and contends appellate 21 counsel rendered ineffective assistance. Plaintiff United States contends that since the 22 constitutional violation claims lacked merit, appellate counsel did not fall below an 23 objective standard of reasonableness in failing to raise the claims nor was Petitioner 24 prejudiced by this failure.

25 To establish a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel, the petitioner must show 26 that counsel's representation fell below an objective standard of reasonableness, and that 27 counsel's deficient performance resulted in prejudice to the petitioner. Strickland v.
28 Washington, 466 U.S. 688, 689 (1984). Both deficient performance and prejudice are

1 required before a conviction or sentence will be found to have resulted from a breakdown 2 in the adversary process which rendered the result of the proceeding unreliable and in 3 violation of the Sixth Amendment. Id. See also United States v. Thomas, 417 F.3d 1053, 4 1056 (9th Cir. 2005) (holding there was no prejudice where defense counsel did not consult 5 and obtain defendant's consent to defense counsel's strategic decision to focus on more 6 defensible and consequential charges).

7 Claims of ineffective assistance of appellate counsel are evaluated according to the 8 standard set out in Strickland. Cockett v. Ray, 333 F.3d 938, 944 (9th Cir. 2003). A 9 petitioner must show that appellate counsel's performance fell below an objective standard 10 of reasonableness and that there is a reasonable probability that, but for counsel's 11 unprofessional errors, petitioner would have prevailed on appeal. Id. Failure to raise an 12 argument not supported by the record does not fall below an objective standard of 13 reasonableness. See Pollard v. White, 119 F.3d 1430, 1436-37(9th Cir. 1997). "The failure 14 to raise a meritless legal argument does not constitute ineffective assistance of counsel." 15 Shah v. United States, 878 F.2d 1156, 1162 (9th Cir. 1989) (citing Baumann v. United 16 States, 692 F.2d 565, 572 (9th Cir. 1982)).

17 In Petitioner's direct appeal, appellate counsel challenged the Court's denial of 18 Petitioner's pre-trial motion to suppress wiretap evidence and the use of Petitioner's prior 19 felony conviction during sentencing. Although ultimately unsuccessful, the Court finds 20 appellate counsel's conduct complied with the standard for objectively reasonable 21 assistance delineated by Strickland and reiterated in Cockett. Cockett, 333 F.3d at 944.
22 Petitioner has not established that he would have prevailed on appeal had appellate counsel 23 raised his constitutional violation claims. See Id. As the Court found above, the claims 24 were unsupported by any law or fact. See Pollard, at 1436-37; see also Shah, 878 F.2d at 25 1162.

26 Petitioner was not prejudiced by the denial of trial continuance and Petitioner was 27 not shackled in the presence of the jury. Appellate counsel was not ineffective nor was 28

1 Petitioner prejudiced by appellate counsel's failure to raise these constitutional violation 2 claims.

3 3. Jurisdiction

4 Petitioner contends to challenge this Court's jurisdiction. Plaintiff United States 5 contends Petitioner's case was adjudicated in the proper venue, an Article III court.

6 The Court has addressed Petitioner's numerous similar motions and rejected them 7 in turn. (e.g. ECF Nos. 773; 799; 986 at 3). In this case, Petitioner was convicted of 8 committing a federal offense, conspiracy to distribute methamphetamine, in violation of 9 21 U.S.C. §§ 841(a)(1) and 846. (ECF No. 1). The indictment charges Petitioner with 10 committing an "offense[] against the laws of the United States." 18 U.S.C. §3231. The 11 Court has subject matter jurisdiction over Petitioner's case. United States v. Cotton, 535 12 U.S. 625, 630 (2002). The Court has personal jurisdiction as well as territorial jurisdiction 13 to proceed with this matter. Petitioner's jurisdictional challenge is once again denied.

14 4. Evidentiary Hearing

15 An individual filing a claim for federal habeas corpus relief under 28 U.S.C. § 2255 16 is entitled to an evidentiary hearing "unless the motion and the files and records of the case 17 conclusively show the prisoner is entitled to no relief." United States v. Schaflander, 743 18 F.2d 714, 717 (9th Cir. 1984). This standard requires an evidentiary hearing unless the 19 movant's allegations, when viewed against the record, do not state a claim for relief or are 20 so palpably incredible or patently frivolous as to warrant summary dismissal. Id. A district 21 court judge considering a habeas petition is not required to hold an evidentiary hearing 22 when he can base his decision on the record which includes extensive transcripts of 23 hearings and his own recollections of the proceedings. Shah, 878 F.2d at 1160.

24 The Court has reviewed the record in its entirety and determined an evidentiary 25 hearing is not warranted. Petitioner's allegations are not supported by the extensive trial 26 record and the Court finds Petitioner's submitted affidavits not credible. Petitioner has not 27 established prejudice sufficient to overcome the procedural default of his constitutional 28 violation claims nor establish ineffective assistance of appellate counsel.

1 CONCLUSION

2 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED the motion to vacate, correct or set aside conviction 3 pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255 filed by Petitioner Robert Cota Jr. is denied. (ECF No. 1180).
4 A certificate of appealability must be obtained in order to pursue an appeal from a final 5 order in a Section 2255 habeas corpus proceeding. 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(1)(B). A certificate 6 of appealability may issue “if the applicant has made a substantial showing of the denial of 7 a constitutional right.” 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2). A certificate should issue where the 8 prisoner shows that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the petition states a 9 valid claim of the denial of a constitutional right, and whether the district court was correct 10 in its procedural ruling. See Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484 (2000). The Court finds 11 that reasonable jurists could not find Petitioner’s claim that he was entitled to relief under 12 28 U.S.C. § 2255 to be debatable.
